

Exhibiting Companies are being contacted by a variety of companies claiming they are the "official" housing service for Southwest Fuel & Convenience Expo/Texas Food & Fuel Association.

Here are some of those companies to watch out for:

- ➔ Business Travel Services
- ➔ Expo Housing Services
- ➔ Global Travel Partners
- ➔ Convention Housing Authority
- ➔ Global Housing Services Corporation
- ➔ National Travel Associates

PLEASE BE ADVISED: We have no affiliation or relationship with any of the above companies or any other housing company and. We don't recommend, approve or endorse their services.

➔ Our host hotel, Grand Hyatt, will never contact exhibitors & attendees for reservations.

HOW THEY OPERATE

A typical room-poaching scenario plays out like this: First, the third-party housing companies zero in on an upcoming event and troll association websites, and most recently show apps - - - to gather contacts. Exhibitors are by nature easy prey, because they like to advertise their attendance and need accommodations as well.

The third-party companies call or send emails, often identifying themselves as the "official" housing bureau for the event. Some even reproduce the association's logo in their correspondence to give it an air of authenticity. Others simply claim to be "affiliated with" or "working on behalf of" the group's housing bureau. They might warn that the room block is close to selling out and urge attendees to book immediately to secure housing, using the lure of a of a room rate that is significantly less than the published group rate -- for a limited time only.

Not surprisingly, Exhibitors find such offers tempting, and many promptly hand over their credit card data, believing they have scored a great rate and their housing is a done deal. Unfortunately, this often turns out to be the start of a long, costly nightmare. In the best of outcomes, attendees do, in fact, score room reservations at a discounted price – but it might be at a lower-tier hotel far off the route. Worse, the cancellation penalties for such reservations can be harsh. In the most dire cases, they'll show up to find no room reservations in their name, their credit cards have been charged and they are in the hole for thousands of dollars.
